BOK OFFERS NEW $50,000 PRIZE FOR BETTER PLAN IF PICKED BY SENATORS

The Author to Receive $50,000 More if Senate Adopts His Peace Program—Still Insists Financing of Award is Solely His Business.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Edward Bok, originator and promoter of the $100,000 peace plan project, came back at his senatorial inquisitors today with a startling offer.

In a letter to Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, Bok offered to turn over to the Senate investigating committee all of the 22,164 peace plans submitted in the recent contest and allow the senators to select the plan which they believe to be the best. And Bok agreed to pay to the winner they selected the sum of $100,000—the same amount he offered for the previous plan.

"I also will agree to defray the expenses of a nation wide referendum if desired, and in all respects give the plan which your committee selects the same financial support accorded by me to the present plan," said Bok.

Bok's new offer was received with scorn by members of the Senate investigating committee. Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, only League of Nations supporter on the committee, termed it "futile."

"I have no concern about the merits of Mr. Bok's peace plan, nor has the committee," said Caraway. "His new offer to contribute $100,000 to the writer of a peace plan which the committee thinks most meritorious is generous but futile. The committee announced at the start of its hearings that it would not discuss the merits or demerits of any subject under consideration."

Bok's sensational offer was contained in a letter in which he defended his refusal to tell the senatorial committee how much money he was spending to circularize and promote his peace plan project.

"I do not know definitely the amount spent or to be spent in the conduct of the award," said Bok. "You must realize that, as a matter of ordinary good taste, I ought not to be placed in the position of discussing the amount of money I am spending in a service I have undertaken on behalf of the American people.

"I am strenghtened in my belief that you have no right to enter into my personal affairs. However, if you still differ with me, on this point and if the law gives you the right which you claim, there is no reason why you should not seek this from those who can give you the definite information which I do not possess. Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., is treasurer of the Award and the Girard Trust company of Philadelphia is the custodian of the fund at their disposal for the purpose of the award.

"From the questions asked by some of the members of your committee it was strongly intimated that I was pre-disposed in favor of a particular kind of plan. It was likewise suggested that the jury of award was also selected with the same pre-disposition.

"My absolute confidence in the jury of the American peace award is such that I believe they carried out the purpose of the award and selected 'the most practical plan' by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world.

"If, however, you do not share my confidence in Elihu Root, General James G. Harbord, Colonel Edward M. House, Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, Dean Roscoe Pound, William Allen White and Brand Whitlock, I hereby make your committee the following proposal:

"I will ask (and since the power is theirs I can only ask) the policy committee of the American peace award that the 22,164 plans submitted be turned over to your committee either as a committee of the senate or as individuals. If in the judgment of your committee there is found a more practical plan than the one selected by the jury named above by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world, I shall be glad to give to the author of the plan selected by your committee the sum of $100,000 under the following conditions, i. e., the payment to the author of $50,000 when your committee has selected the better plan, and $50,000 to the author, if and when, the plan in substance is approved by the United States senate.

"I earnestly urge upon you I receive a favorable consideration of this proposal to the end that we may unite in an endeavor to give to the American people the uppermost desire of their hearts; an end to bloodshed and an era of world peace."

Lid Blown Off Teapot Dome

Senate Probe of Sinclair Lease When Fall Was Secretary Becomes of Major Importance Through Testimony of Roosevelt and Walberg.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The lid was blown off Teapot Dome today.

Criminal prosecution of some of the persons involved in the leasing of the great naval oil reserve by Ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall to Harry F. Sinclair was declared to be probable as a result of the startling revelations made to the senate public land committee by Archie Roosevelt, son of the late president, and G. D. Walberg, both of whom have resigned from Sinclair's employ because of "suspicion of corruption" in connection with the leases.

For years both Roosevelt and Walberg had been right hand men of Sinclair. Walberg had access to the business and private check books of the oil man, which he told the senate public lands committee had been hurriedly taken out of the office just before Sinclair sailed for Paris last Wednesday.

The department of justice, given full access to the committee's records taken in a year's investigation, has launched a probe of its own into the leasing with a view to possible criminal action, it was learned.

Rush L. Holland, assistant attorney general, was in the committee room when Roosevelt and Walberg told their amazing stories that led to their resignations.

"Of course the department of justice is investigating," Holland said today. "We shall certainly seek criminal prosecution if evidence sufficient to warrant such action is unearthed."

He admitted that agents of the department are working on the case, but would not say whether this was requested by the committee, and he refused to state whether he considered the present revelations sufficient.

Statements by Roosevelt and Walberg, who was called for additional questioning today, cleared away much of the mystery which has baffled committee members and opened new paths for the committee's probe.

Fall, who repudiated testimony that he had borrowed $100,000 from Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, to buy a ranch in New Mexico, will again be asked by Senator Walsh, Dem., Montana, directing the inquiry, to appear to explain where he got the money to pay for the ranch and to make extensive improvements on his ranch. Fall, ill in New Orleans, announced he had cancelled an ocean voyage to wait for the hearings to close.

E. L. Doheny of the Pan-American Petroleum Company who obtained lease to rich naval reserve land in California, is on his way to Washington to testify.

Senator Caraway, Dem., of Ark., and Representative Garrett, Dem., Tenn., declared they would press for adoption of their resolutions demanding cancellation of the leases to Sinclair and Doheny.

Democrats were making political capital of the latest Teapot Dome expose and threatened to use this material as one of the paramount issues in the 1924 presidential campaign. The Democratic national committee launched the first attack with a broadside against Fall.

FEDERATED P.-T. A. PLANS FOR CHILD WELFARE DAY.

The January meeting of the Federated Council of Parent-Teacher Association was held Thursday, January 17 at the high school. Schools No. 2, 4, 5 and 6 were represented. Although the meeting was not a large one, there was a great amount of enthusiasm in evidence. Some of the schools reported plans for the observance of child welfare day, or founders' day, as it is sometimes called. It was on February 17, 1897, that the first Parent-Teacher Association was formed, and each year throughout the country the day is observed by numerous associations. There is usually a program rendered by pupils of the schools and money is contributed for child welfare work. It was voted at this meeting to present a year's subscription to the Child Welfare Magazine to the president of each association in Kingston. The council is considering the organizing of more associations and ways and means by which to accomplish this were discussed.

Bonus One of First to Pass

Both Parties Ready to Put Through Measure at Albany Giving Each World War Veteran $150.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22.—A bill providing for a bonus of $150 for every New York State World War veteran will be one of the first of the major measures to pass the 1924 legislature, leaders of both parties predicted today.

Sponsored by the American Legion, a bonus measure has been ordered and favorably reported in both the senate and assembly.

It provides for the creation of a bonus bureau to be composed of the adjutant general, attorney general, state controller and state treasurer.

The bonus will be distributed through American Legion posts. It is hoped the first payments can be made in May. Each veteran who has been honorably discharged or is still in service will receive $10 a month until the maximum amount, $150 has been paid.

Under the bonus measure of 1921, which later was declared unconstitutional each veteran was to receive $250. There are approximately 500,000 New York state veterans who will benefit under the present measure. Because of this number, the individual amount had to be limited to $150, legion officials said.

Labor Rules in England

"Country Can Trust Us" Says MacDonald As King Designates Him Premier.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

London, Jan. 22—Premier Stanley Baldwin, chief of the Tory government of Great Britain for nearly eight months, resigned today after the House of Commons had adopted a resolution last night expressing lack of confidence in his cabinet. The Labor party was summoned to the head of the government for the first time in Englands history.

After Baldwin had visited Buckingham Palace where he tendered the resignation of his government, J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party and chief of the Opposition in the House of Commons, was invited to the palace to receive the designation as premier.

MacDonald readily accepted the post, knowing in advance that the honor would be his.

Labor comes into power at a time when the entire nation is torn with labor strife, the railway locomotive engineers and firemen and some of the coal miners being on strike.

MacDonald's followers said he would set his face at once toward settling these disputes.

Premier-designate MacDonald said he hoped to present his new cabinet to King George tomorrow.

"The country can trust us" declared the premier-designate. "There is nothing to fear. We realize our responsibilities."

It was anticipated that Commons would not meet again until about February 14.

The situation has been so well discounted that the swing of the government from the hands of the Tories into the hands of the Labor-Socialist group cause little comment among the public at large.

LOWER ELECTRIC RATES AT DOWN-RIVER POINTS

The Central Hudson Gas & Electris Co. has made an announcement of a voluntary reduction of electric rates to residence and commercial customers, covering the cities of Newburgh and Poughkeepsie and also Hyde Park, Marlborough, Milton, Cornwall and similar outlying districts.

The reduction which will be of the most widespread interest is that to "open rate" customers, the rate being reduced one cent per kilowatt hour, which is the equivalent of an eight per cent cut. The present "open rate" is 12½ cents. This has been reduced to 11½ cents.

Lenine, Dictator of Soviet Russia, Idol of Peasantry and With Influence Akin to Napoleon's, Dies Near Moscow

Nikolai Lenine

Leon Trotzky

End Comes After Two Years' Illness—He, More Than Any Other, Made Russia First Communist Power—Triumvirate Succeeds Him—Trotzky, Long Lenine's Most Prominent Aide, Seems Near End of Political Career.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moscow, Jan. 22.—Official announcement was made today that Nicolai Lenine, president of the Council of Peoples' Commissaries (the Russian Red government) is dead. He died last night at his country estate with his wife at the bedside. Lenine had been sinking for some time owing to heart weakness induced by paralysis of the side.

As soon as news of Lenine's death was circulated here flags were placed at half mast upon all the government buildings and upon many private houses.

The Soviet cabinet conferred upon plans for the funeral, which will be held on Saturday.

The greatest public demonstration of sorrow Russia has ever known in history is anticipated.

An official communique said:

"Lenine died at Gorky, 30 miles from Moscow, at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening. His wife and sister were at the bedside."

The first public announcement of Lenine's death was made midst dramatic scenes of grief by President Kalenin of the Russian Federated Republic of Soviets at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Bolshoy theatre where the Soviet congress was in session.

The delegates had assembled to celebrate the anniversary of the first revolutionary outbreak in Petrograd. Services were planned in honor of fallen "comrades." Kalmenev, Zinoviev and Stalin appeared upon the stage with tears streaming down their cheeks. Immediately the audience knew some great tragedy had befallen the nation.

Kalenin advanced to the front of the stage and in broken, halting sentences started to speak.

"Comrades," he cried, trying to make his voice strong, but unsuccessfully, "our comrade Ilyitch is no longer with us."

The speaker paused while the audience—men and women—leaned forward in their seats. He resumed:

"Our beloved leader passed away last night. All that is left for us is the glorious teaching he has left behind him."

Kalenin apparently had more in mind to say, but could not speak. He bowed slightly and sat down.

The audience sat thunderstruck for a moment. Then a mighty wail went up. Men groaned in their grief, women sobbed. Some of the women delegates fainted.

In the streets military bands marched slowly back and forth playing funeral dirges.

The body will be brought to Moscow tomorrow. It was embalmed today.

It will rest in state for several days before internment.

The body will be brought here (according to present plans) to rest in state at the Kremlin before it is interred in Red Square where the body of John Reed, American writer and Socialist lies buried.

London, Jan. 22.—Nicolai Lenine, founder of the Russian Soviet government, expounder of Communism and the most spectacular figure in European statecraft since Napoleon Bonaparte, is dead at the age of 53, according to word reaching here today. He had been ill for two years of heart trouble and partial paralysis.

Word of Lenine's death reached London in a code message from Moscow. He died at his country estate near Moscow. Plans are under way for a great state funeral on Saturday. He will be buried at the Red burial ground at the Kremlin in Moscow.

Lenine was the real power behind the Moscow government. His powers were even more dictatorial than those of the autocratic czars that ruled before he came into authority as head of the Russian government in November, 1917.

Lenine's death came at a time when his colleague, Leon Trotzky, as spectacular a revolutionary figure as himself, was ill and at war with the Central Executive Committee of the Communist party. Disease and death thus removes from the arena two of the most active figures that set the Red flag flying over Russia.

Specialists had been summoned from Germany from time to time. They succeeded in prolonging Lenine's life but could not save it. During most of the time he was ill he lived in a modest villa on his country estate outside of Moscow attended daily by his wife.

Members of the People's Council of Commissaries (the government of the Federal Socialist Soviets) visited him at intervals for counsel. Sick or well, Lenine remained the idol of the Russian Communists.

At the last meeting of the executives of the All-Russian Communist party, which ended only last week, a resolution was adopted that Russian youths should be compelled to study the political teachings of Lenine as the basis for the future government of Russia.

While Lenine's influence was felt throughout the entire world he has always remained more or less of an obscure figure. So long as he could rule and wield power he was content to remain in the background and allow the lesser lights to occupy the limelight.

It had long been reported that Lenine would be succeeded by a triumvirate. It was a notable circumstance that his death found a virtual triumvirate in power. Zinoviev, head of the Petrograd Soviet, leader of the Third Internationale and members of the Communist executive committee; Stalin, people's commissar for minorities (nationalities) in the Soviet government; and Leo Kamenev, third vice-president of the council, are virtually in power. They are leading the Communist "old guard" against the hostile faction under Trotzky.

For six years Lenine was practically dictator of Russia. Allied powers waged war against him but without success. His notable military failure was the war against Poland when Poland was saved by French troops.

Lenine's real family name was Vladimir Ilyitch Ulyanov. He came of a noble family but was banished from Russia because of his Nihilist (Socialist) principles. He lived a great part of his life in France and Switzerland. He was living in Switzerland during the World War. In 1917 when the Russian government was tottering Germany allowed Lenine and a few colleagues to pass through the country in a sealed train. At that time the Czar, Nicholas, had been overthrown. Alexander Kerensky was in power and Russia was still waging war against Germany. But the "councils" in the army and navy had weakened their strength and Germany saw a chance for a bloodless coup.

Lenine and his adherents arrived from Switzerland about the same time that Trotzky arrived from the United States. They started their red revolution in Petrograd. After bloody fighting, the moderates under Kerensky were put down. Lenine and Trotzky came into power.

The following year (1918) they negotiated a treaty of peace with Germany at Brest Litovsk. This treaty was bitterly denounced by the Allies and later by the Russians themselves, but they abided by it and from that time on Russia ceased to be a factor in the World War.

Lenine put George Tchitcherin in power as Peoples' commissar for foreign affairs (foreign minister) a post he still holds. The first three years of the Soviet regime was marked by internal warfare and foreign invasion. The United States, France, Great Britain, Japan, Rumania and Poland united in making war against Russia, but it was like trying to walk through a gigantic feather bed. One by one the invasions and rebellions were crushed leaving Lenine secure at Moscow.

But the strain of his position told upon his health. At first Lenine took frequent vacations. They became longer until finally he had to give up power altogether.

Foreign statesmen united in admitting that Lenine was not only one of the most spectacular figures Europe has produced in the past century, but one of the most powerful. From his retreat in the Kremlin he issued orders that were obeyed by the "proletariat" not only in his own country but in foreign lands as well. He had become almost a myth when his death was announced today.

Lenine was married but had no family. He was the author of many books upon Communism and Socialism.

Many attempts were made upon Lenine's life, but he escaped them all to die a natural death, peacefully in bed.

Dora Kaplan, a woman Socialist, shot Lenine and he had a narrow escape from death. The bullet was not removed from his breast until over a year later. This wound is said to have hastened his death.

Ulster Society Dines Saturday

The largest number that ever attended a banquet of the Ulster County Society in the city of New York will be present at the eighth annual dinner of the society to be held at the Waldorf on Saturday evening of this week. The Hon. Philip Elting, collector of customs, New York, N. Y., will be the society's guest of honor. Collector Elting, coming from Highland, the men from that section in attendance this year will occupy three tables in honor of Mr. Elting. Honorary President C. J. Curtin, formerly of High Falls, will preside. Besides the honored guests of the evening, who will make a speech, the Hon. Job E. Hedges and the Hon. Martin Conboy and John M. Cashin, assistant United States district attorney, will be among the speakers. For several years past the society has made it a custom to include in the list of speakers a young man from the county and that is the reason Mr. Cashin will respond for the men in his class at the dinner this year. Nearly 200 members have already sent in their reservations, and unless all are in by Thursday night of this week, it looks as though some will be disappointed as the society has contracted for a certain size banquet room at the hotel and cannot now alter the plans.

BLOWUP AT BLOWOUT OF WALDEN EASTERN STAR

When the lid blew off a coffee can in the kitchen of the Municipal Building at Walden on Friday night while the Eastern Star was preparing to serve refreshments to persons at their dance, nearly everyone in the kitchen was showered with hot coffee. None was seriously burned, but a number of pretty dresses were ruined.

Two large coffee cans which had been constructed from 45-quart milk cans, were in use, and both contained about 40 quarts of coffee. The lid of the can which blew off had been pushed on tight. When the coffee began to steam, the can became like a boiler. Considerable steam pressure developed in the can. When Melvin Fetter who was assisting the ladies in the kitchen, knocked the can lid loose, the pressure caused the lid to fly off, and hot coffee sprayed the ceiling. The force of the impact against the ceiling caused an effect that was similar to a hose spray, and every one in the kitchen received a ducking.

SALVINSKI TO BE TRIED AGAIN FOR MURDER.

Matthew Salvinski of Albany, Monday will be placed on trial in supreme court in Ballston Spa for the second time in connection with the slaying of Trooper Roy A. Donivan of Pine Hill, Ulster county. In the first trial last December, the jury disagreed. Salvinski is the second defendant to go on trial on a charge of murder, first degree. George Haupt, also of Albany, the first man placed on trial, was acquitted. Donivan was slain early on the morning of October 8 on the Saratoga Springs-Glens Falls road in a gun battle. The police are still searching for William King, the third man, who is accused of being with Haupt and Salvinski at the time of the slaying.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Helsingfors, Jan. 22.—Ten thousand persons have been arrested or deported at Moscow in the past week, according to information received today. A biting wind blew throughout Monday and today.

GIRLS HURT WHEN CAR HITS A POLE

An Elgin touring car being driven by Charles Cook, a negro of Cementon and occupied by Helen Lawson and Bessie Comerford of Kingston, and another negro of Cementon, ran into a telegraph pole near the former Cody store at Malden, Friday afternoon. After the collision the girls were picked up by a passing motorist and taken to Dr. Luther Emerick's office, at Saugerties where their injuries were dressed. Miss Comerford had several cuts on her face, being hit by flying glass from the broken windshield. It required six stitches to close the wounds. She also had a bad gouge on her chin and both legs were bruised. Miss Lawson had her back strained and was also shaken up due to jumping from the car while it was moving. After having their wounds attended to the girls were taken to their home in Kingston and the men returned to Cementon. The car, badly damaged, was towed to Saugerties.

SUNDAY WORK LAW BARRING PAY UPHELD.

Carpenter's Suit Thrown Out by Justice Seeger.

Labor performed Sunday, unless of a necessary nature, cannot be made the basis of a suit to enforce payment for it, Justice Seeger ruled in supreme court in Poughkeepsie Monday. William E. Leak of that city, as assignee, brought action against Patsy Altizio of Highland for $225 for carpenter work done at Altizio's house. The defense contended that because the work was done Sunday, the contract was void since under the old penal code no work save that which is necessary or charitable is legal on the Sabbath. Justice upheld this contention, and a settlement was reached out of court.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. YAK

"Yes, I've been asked to tell my story," said Mr. Yak, "and I am indeed glad to oblige.

"I like to think that people are interested in knowing about me, and I always like it when children come to the zoo and when they ask what I am.

"It is nice to have people interested in one.

"Of course it is nice to have people interested in two or three, but when I said that it was nice to have people interested in one I meant it the way I've heard creatures talk—I meant that it was nice to have people interested in me. I said 'one' because that sounds better and more superior.

"Well, we come from Tibet and Central Asia, and we are hitched to wagons in the home country and carry people about in these wagons or carts.

"We also carry bundles and we pull plows. We do a lot of work at home.

"Yaks give milk and from our hair splendid ropes can be made, and because they saw us hitting flies so successfully with our tails many of our tails have been made into fly swatters.

"If we meet an enemy we fall on him to show him that we think he ought to go down before us.

"But for the most part we're very good natured. Weather doesn't bother us. In fact we like the cold, cold weather which some of the animals don't like at all. And we're happy in the zoo.

"We believe that lace and all sorts of wonderful things have been made from our hair, and you will admit that it is handsome hair.

"It has been said somewhere that women had beautiful hair, but goodness me, Yaks have beautiful hair, too. Women shouldn't keep all the glory to themselves.

"We Like Snow."

"Now Methuselah, the Giant Tortoise, shows a good disposition. He enjoyed the last snowstorm we had immensely. He didn't complain and long for other weather.

"King Cobra is changing his skin for a new one, but he is so cross. Last year when he did this they had a horrible time with him.

"The old skin didn't come off across his eyes and the keepers tried to help him with it, but gracious, he'd try to attack them, and they had to keep on their guard.

"As it was they ran great risks in what they did. But they were brave and splendid about it.

"King Cobra didn't really deserve such attention, for they were trying to help him and he was ready to kill them!

"That wasn't very decent of him, was it?

"Well, they forgave him and put bushes with twigs and underbrush in his cage so that he could rub against these and help pull off his skin, but he wasn't grateful in the least.

"He is certainly a bad creature.

"But here I am, a good creature, and many of us have given rope, and food and lace and cloth and fly swatters, and no end of gifts to people, as I've said.

"I am grateful for my happy home in the zoo."

"Well," said Billie Brownie, who had been listening to Mr. Yak's story, as you may imagine, "I do like you, Mr. Yak. I like your name. I like everything about you. Is there anything else you can tell me?"

"I believe I forgot to tell you the most important thing of all," said Mr. Yak.

"I belong to the oxen family. And of course, perhaps I should not be boastful about not being a weather grumbler on the cold days when others are complaining, for when Yaks are free and wild they live near places where there is always snow.

"Well," said Billie Brownie, "I like the winter too, and now that we're speaking of it I will sing you my winter song which I made up on my way here this afternoon. I do hope you will like it, and if you do it will be a great honor if you will allow me to dedicate it to you.

"That means, Mr. Yak, that I would like to put on the top of the song that it is TO MY GOOD FRIEND MR. YAK."

"Oh, indeed, such a compliment," said Mr. Yak.

"Wait until you see if you like the song," said Billie Brownie, and then he sang this song:

Mr. Yak, the Polar Bear and I,
All feel so very, very spry.
For we like the cold which is so bracing.
And we're happy that the winter time we're facing.

And Mr. Yak thought the song a fine one!

SAUCES FOR MEATS AND FISH

There is an art in the preparation of sauces and a science in combining flavors that is only discovered by the cook who has the touch, the taste and the consciousness of the importance of good cooking and serving.

A French sauce is a thing of surpassing delicacy. It is expensive, too, for it takes time to collect ingredients and prepare them. No chef who smokes or indulges in alcoholic drinks can ever attain perfection in sauce making. One must have a very sensitive sense of taste. There are few who can equal the French in the making of sauces. The flavoring or seasoning is the thing most conspicuous.

Sauces are a thickened fluid flavored in various ways with vegetables, meat boned and spiced with all sorts of herbs and aromatics. The thickening consists of starch in some form, either flour, cornstarch, arrowroot, prepared in the form of a roux, which may be any of these cooked in butter; for brown roux the flour is browned. Egg yolks are also used as thickening.

The liquid for the sauces may be stock, milk or butter, or in cold sauces, oil. The vegetable flavors are onions, leeks, garlic, peppers, green, red and hot; carrots, turnip, celery and mushrooms. Zest is sometimes added from the rind of lemons or oranges.

Herbs and aromatics are thyme, marjoram, bay leaves, parsley and chevril. The bones used for the sauces for meat are preferably veal bones, crushed and roasted. Fish heads and fish bones are used for fish sauces. We have a basic sauce prepared with flour or starch of some form with butter, milk or stock, called white sauce. The brown sauce is prepared by browning the flour, or in an emergency adding color in the form of caramel.

Tomato sauce is prepared much like soup. The object of all sauces is to serve a savory fluid appropriate to the dry dish with which it is to be eaten.

t State Bar Ass'n Meeting

dge Clearwater Submits Report on Civil Practice Act—Resolution Commende Court of Appeals.

The forty-seventh annual meeting the New York State Bar Associa- n was held in New York on Friday d Saturday of last week, and was ended by Judge Clearwater, Judge tts, Senator Walton and many yers from the adjoining counties the Third judicial district.

Judge Clearwater, as chairman of committee relative to the Prac- e Act, submitted the report of the mmittee which was emphasized by e New York newspapers because of slightly ironic character. The dge said:

"The Civil Practice Act gradually s commended itself to a somewhat ctant profession. Occasionally it ots with restrictive judicial con- ction more indicative perhaps of aservatism than definite opposi- n; upon the whole, it has been re- ved with greater favor than was icipated. * * * Reforms make ir way slowly. We trust that the ocedure attendant upon the ad- inistration of justice in New York ving emerged from the chaos of e Devonian period in the course of not too remote future, will attain t degree of simplicity to which vast majority of the bar aspire, withstanding that the Civil Prac- e Act has not attained the dignity perfection, and like other finite tters, doubtless never will reach t sublime altitude."

The judge also submitted the re- rt of the committee of the associa- n whose duty it is to confer with e court of appeals relative to the rk of that court. He stated that the 10th of December, 1923, the rt adjourned because there were causes ready for argument, mething which had not happened 47 years. He commended stinctedly the untiring devotion of e judges of that tribunal to the charge of their important duties, d offered the following resolution: "Resolved, that the New York ate Bar Association extends to the dges of the court of appeals and to e people of the state of New York, s expression of its profound ap- ciation of the untiring devotion the members of that august tri- nal to the discharge of the im- rtant duties entrusted to them by e people, and devolved upon them the constitution and the laws."

The reports of both committees ere received and approved with g continued and hearty applause.

"My China Doll" Is Colorful

Thursday night "My China Doll," described by a New London critic as a kaleidoscopic riot of melody and color, comes to the Kingston Opera House. For this gorgeous musical extravaganza Charles George furnishes book, lyrics and music and he is said to have done well in every department. There are two acts and eight scenes and Barbara Brouell, "The Girl from Spokane," who was in Julian Eltinge's company, is a delightful spirite new to eastern audiences. She has been playing in the Orient.

There isn't a serious moment in the show and the dancing, music and mercurial versatility of the whole company have won the show flattering press notices in a score of cities.

England's Prime Ministers.

The title of prime minister in England was first used by Sir Robert Walpole, who was in office from 1721 to 1742. By this time ministers were being chosen from one political party, and they had begun to act together, so that they obtained the name of the ministry. Their leader was then called the premier or prime minister. This title was not recognized by law until 1905.

Golfers' Numerals.

A French caddie, after listening to many visiting players, British and American, informed a friend that he learned how to count the strokes in English, viz.: "Von, do, thre, fore, fif, ses, damn, ait, damn." Being asked how seven was distinguished from nine in this scoring he replied that when the latter was meant it was pronounced with double force.

The Busy Bee.

In order to store up a kilogram (two and one-fifth pounds) of honey, bees have to visit at least 6,000,000 heads of red clover, according to computations based on observances of their work by Dr. L. Armbruster of Berlin. Clover honey requires the most work. Fewer visits to other honey-producing plants are required, as low as 80,000 in the case of peas.

THE FACTORY AND THE FAMILY

When Mrs. Ehmann was widowed, there was obviously nothing to do except to have her son leave home for some job that would keep himself and the family going. San Francisco was the nearest city to the half-deserted mining town of Oroville where the Ehmanns lived. So to San Francisco the boy went. A wholesale hardware store put him on as a traveling salesman, and the family was—though not by too wide a margin—saved from penury.

On a trip home the boy gazed up at the neglected olive trees on the hillside. "Had some queer ripe olives to eat the other day," he remarked casually. "Tasted good, too. But they're imported all the way from Spain, so they cost too much for me to bring you some. You might try pickling these."

From his remark grew a trip across the bay to the university next time he was in the city. There, apparently the only place in California, was filed away a recipe for pickling ripe olives. Mrs. Ehmann found an empty keg or two, which for lack of room indoors, she had to prop up under the house porch on the sloping mountainside. When her son came home, she opened a jar of ripe olives. "Um-m," he said judicially, "good, but not quite as good as those imported fellows."

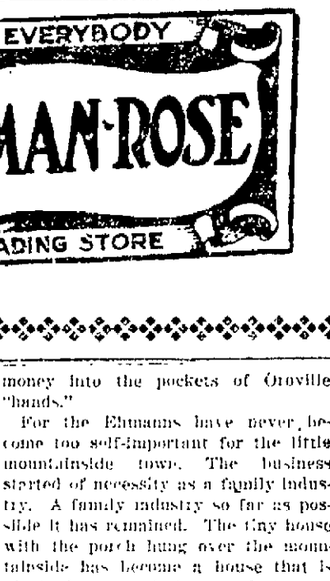
"Try the-e," said his mother, holding out another open jar. "I thought I'd experiment a bit with that recipe."

"Why, mother, I could sell those as a sideline to the hardware job!" said the boy. "Can you do it again?"

"Oh, yes," said the woman who loved her kitchen. "I've kept a copy of just what I did. But you'll like this third batch still better." And he did. So did the "trade," when he began to peddle Ehmann's olives on his route. So, gradually, did the rest of the United States, as the keg under the porch grew into a factory that put money into the pockets of Oroville "hands."

For the Ehmanns have never become too self-important for the little mountainside town. The business started of necessity as a family industry. A family industry so far as possible it has remained. The tiny house with the porch hung over the mountainside has become a house that is plenty big enough for comfort, even when the grandchildren are at home, but that lacks all the ostentation of the typical "new rich folks'" mansion. And the devotion of these same grandchildren, together with the occasional presidency of the Oroville W. C. T. U., have proved quite enough honor to satisfy the founder of the first ripe olive business in America.

Will Question Her on Peace Plan



Miss E. E. Lape

Miss Esther Everett Lape, member in charge of the Bok Peace Plan Award has been summoned to appear before a United States Senate Committee that will investigate the motive behind the $100,000 award of $100,000 for a plan whereby America may aid in the peace of the world. Miss Lape was formerly Manager in Gifford Pinchot's campaign for Governor of Pennsylvania in 1922 and before that was prominent as a writer, teacher and propagandist.

Gentle Reminder.

The beadle was in the habit of showing visitors over the remains of the abbey in the parish. On one occasion he had done so for a lady, who on leaving him in the churchyard, offered him only barren thanks. As she went through the gate the wily man remarked: "Well, ma'am, if you find you've lost your purse when you get home, remember you didn't have it out here."

Lives in the Mud.

Some fish are very particular in regard to the purity of the water in which they live, says Nature Magazine but not so the catfish, for it will live and thrive in the muddiest and most stagnant waters. If the air supply of the water becomes insufficient it will rise to the surface and take in air through the mouth.

AMERICAN ILLITERACY.

The announcement of a four days' conference in Washington on national illiteracy calls to mind the fact that the intelligence tests made in the selection of American soldiers in 1917 and 1918 were based on a new conception of illiteracy and created the impression that our percentage in that particular is much higher than would have been shown under the previous standard. In the selection of our World War soldiers it was assumed that anyone who could not write a passable letter and read a newspaper more or less fluently was illiterate, but under the previous standard anyone was classed as literate who could sign his name and manage to read a few words from a printed page. Doubtless the rigid army test is a more desirable one, but it introduced a new standard which upset former figures and involved a much greater percentage of American illiteracy than has been recognized or admitted.

According to the old basis of figuring the percentage of American illiteracy is really very small, and would be trifling indeed but for the low average among Southern negroes and among adult foreigners who came to this country too late to take advantage of the free schools. Under the old system of rating the percentage of national illiteracy is not only small but steadily decreasing. The census of 1920 gives 6 as the percentage of those who could not read or write, a considerable drop from 1910, the census of that year also showing an improvement over 1900. The figures for 1920 showed decrease in illiteracy in the native white population of 42 States and no change in the other six States. Foreign-born illiteracy had decreased in 29 States. In Idaho, Wyoming and Washington there was only three-tenths of one per cent of illiteracy, and in New England and the Middle Atlantic States only 4.9 per cent. It was generally low in the Western States and was relatively high only in Southern States with a congested negro population.

Every effort to decrease illiteracy is worthy, of course, being in the interests both of illiterate individuals and of the country as a whole. But it would be well for the coming conference to recognize the difference between the army standard and the old basis of reckoning in order to clear up misapprehension and avoid giving forth the impression that illiteracy has not decreased or has decreased less than was believed.

FINES AND JAIL SENTENCES

According to the police commissioner of Boston, efforts to enforce prohibition, however vigorous and persistent, are largely futile because fines instead of jail sentences are the rule. Although his department has been "honestly, courageously and persistently prosecuting violators of the liquor law," says Commissioner Wilson, "owing to the fact that many of the culprits never darken the doors of a jail, but instead are fined, the result is that many of them are turned back into society to sell their noxious wares." He has reached the conclusion that "the repeated imposition of fines upon persons engaged in violating the prohibition laws is in its last analysis only a license to continue the illegal occupation."

This is both logical and forcible, but there are many who would hesitate to say as much of Commissioner Wilson's further statement as follows: "In my opinion, if it is the desire to enforce prohibition, violations of the liquor law should be punished by jail sentences and not by fines, because these offences are deliberate, planned in advance and not attributable, as are many other crimes, to inherent weaknesses which overpower and master some unfortunates." This accurately describes the bootlegger, but if it accurately describes the purchaser of liquor as well, then there is nothing in the persistent theory of many reformers that the drinker is helpless in the grip of his appetite and liquor alone is the evil thing that is responsible and to be treated as such. Many have doubted the soundness of this theory, and experiment might show promising results from jail sentences for drunkards as well as for bootleggers.

It is pretty generally supposed that, in consequence of agitation, persistent effort and resulting laws, child labor has been practically done away with or at least restricted within narrow bounds, but recent testimony before the Child Welfare Commission shows that even in the populous centers very many young children, "little old men and women," still work long hours under sweat-shop conditions in order to add something to the funds necessary to pay rent and procure food and clothes for families struggling to keep the wolf from the door. As long as there are such families in desperate need such toll will be taken of the strength of children who should be in school or at play, notwithstanding the laws and the efforts of reformers. The cause will have to be removed before the evil can be altogether rooted out.

That Body of Yours

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Although I dislike talking about conditions that are rare, nevertheless there has been such a widespread public interest in this condition, that perhaps a few thoughts about it might be in order.

There are a number of symptoms, but the three outstanding points about it are the extreme sleepiness, the absolute weakness of all the muscles, and a paralysis of certain parts of the body, affecting the eyes and voice most frequently.

There are other symptoms often present including headache, dizziness, and double vision.

It lasts from a few days to a number of weeks. The longer it lasts the better is the chance of recovery.

The outstanding symptom of course is the extreme drowsiness or sleepiness.

The patient can usually be awakened, will actually talk quite sensibly about his condition and symptoms for a while, but will drop off to sleep again at once.

Now what is the cause of this trouble?

It is not definitely known at present.

A number of theories have been set forth, including the idea that it might be a form of food poisoning, or perhaps due to the same poison that causes infantile paralysis.

However, one thing has been noted by investigators. The extreme prostration of sleeping sickness is very much like that seen in influenza or grip.

You've had the grip or have seen people with it, and you remember how weak and tired they appeared.

Another thing when you were getting better from the grip you will also remember how depressed you felt.

This depression lasted a long while considering the short time you were sick.

Also, these cases of sleeping sickness come about the same time of year as grip and flu, as it is called, and the number of cases seems to be in direct proportion to the cases of flu.

What is my point?

That many investigators are forming the opinion that the cause of flu and of sleeping sickness is the same thing.

However, absolute rest, clearing the intestine, and light nourishing food form the basis of the treatment.

TEST YOURSELF FOR SPEED AND ACCURACY.

You differ from your friends in what you can and do accomplish. Do you know just how bright and alert you are?

Beginning today The Freeman will give you a chance to find out by printing a short daily TEST YOURSELF.

Submitting to this test will be as much fun as doing a puzzle.

Mental tests are being used in schools, factories, offices and colleges. You may be called upon to take one when you apply for your next job. Your children will be given them in school.

Thousands of men in the army during the war were classified by intelligence tests, and Edison used a special kind when he applied his famous tests to college graduates who applied to him for jobs.

The tests to be published will not tell you about yourself. They will not make you your own psychologist. Applying mental or intelligence tests and interpreting them is just as much a special profession as the treating of the sick. Professional psychologists are employed by factories and offices to attend to employment and personnel problems just as physicians look after health conditions. Schools have specially trained psychologists to examine the students.

The same tests cannot be used on every one. Bricklayers and stenographers do not have to have the same qualifications and cannot be judged by the same standards. Many qualities are not yet measurable by psychological tests; a person may fail in the tests and still be valuable to his business or firm because he is pleasant and a good mixer.

The daily TEST YOURSELF today will give you some idea of this new method of rating human capabilities.

TEST YOURSELF FOR RANGE OF INFORMATION.

What is in your store of information? What have you learned from mingling with other people, from reading newspapers and books, and from going about in your usual business?

Try this test and find out. You have one minute in which to do it. Read these directions carefully that you may be sure you understand what to do. In each sentence below you have four choices for the last word. Only one is correct. Draw a line under the one of the four words which makes the truest sentence.

Have your watch ready? Begin.

1. The lungs are for seeing breathing digestion hearing.
2. The Panama Canal was built by Russia England Mexico United States.
3. The terrier is a goat cat dog rabbit.
4. Robert E. Lee was famous in literature war religion science.

Barn, Cows and Horse Destroyed

Early Morning Fire Wiped Out Barn and Contents on South Wilbur Avenue—Firemen Found Water Pressure Low and One Hydrant Frozen.

The large barn and its contents, including two cows and a horse, of Max Goldwasser of No. 473 South Wilbur avenue, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin at 3:10 o'clock this morning together with two small bungalows used for summer boarders and located near the barn.

When the fire was discovered an alarm was turned in from box 71 to which the fire department promptly responded. Owing to the high wind the barn was burning briskly by the time the firemen arrived.

Hose was quickly stretched and the firemen found that the water pressure was very low. The fire hydrant at the corner of South Pine street was found frozen.

The firemen by their prompt response to the alarm were able to save the house. The property was for many years known as the Winchell property.

The biting wind and the extreme cold—thermometers registering 4 degrees below zero—made the work of the fire department extremely difficult.

It was about 6:30 o'clock this morning when the fire finally extinguished.

Daniel Webster's Wisdom.

It is only shallow minded pretenders who either make distinguished origin a matter of personal merit or obscure origin a matter of personal reproach. Taunt and scoffing at the humble condition of early life affect nobody but those who are foolish enough to indulge in them. A man who is not ashamed of himself need not be ashamed of his early condition.—Daniel Webster.

The Athenians began their year in June, and the Macedonians in September. The Romans first had their new year in March, but later changed it to January. The Persian new year is August 11, while the ancient Mexicans began it on February 23, and the Mohammedans began it in July. The Chinese begin their year late in January or early in February.

Among the natives of South Africa there is a general belief in the split soul. One tribe believes in three souls—one in the head, another in the stomach, and a third in the big toe.

High Prices for Antique Rugs.

Five hundred dollars a square foot for some antique woolen rugs and $1,000 a square foot for a few antique silk rugs is considered a fair price by some of the best judges.

Correspondence Farmers' School

State Schools of Agriculture Become Such and Offer Many Practical Courses.

Home study courses now include farming subjects, according to an announcement from the New York State schools of agriculture. Realizing that many of the young men on the farms wish to learn better methods of farming but can not afford to go away from home to school, the agricultural school directors have resolved to bring the courses to the farms.

Practical courses in feeding dairy cattle for milk production, feeding the farm flock, growing potatoes as a cash crop and keeping bees for profit have been prepared, and others will be announced within a few weeks.

Enrollment is now open in these courses to the young men of the state, there being no tuition charges except a 50-cent fee to cover the actual cost of notebooks. Applications may be made by letter to the director of one of the schools which are located at Alfred, Canton, Cobleskill, Delhi, Farmingdale and Morrisville, or to the Supervisor of Agricultural Education of the State Department of Education, Albany.

The courses have been carefully planned to include the essentials of the subjects and to cover the work thoroughly and interestingly. Actual performance of the directions in the lessons is required, and it is necessary for the students to send in answers and comments to questions.

During the months from April to October members of the teaching staff in one of the schools will visit those enrolled in the home courses in order to give them first-hand help and guidance. If enough students are enrolled from a community, a regular class will be formed for special instruction.

It is also the oldest in America. Into the story much very interesting Methodist history has been woven. The story of the power of the press is very clearly shown. After the program, the Ladies' Aid Society will serve refreshments. Everybody welcome.

For BRONCHITIS AND BRONCHIAL COUGHS THOUSANDS RECOMMEND ERB-I-TOL

Constipation lays you wide open to other diseases—relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Don't take chances with constipation! This terrible ailment can send poisons into your system which may lead to serious diseases. The longer those poisons accumulate, the more dangerous they become. Begin at once to free your system from them.

Eat Kellogg's Bran. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer will return your money. It is nature's own way to make the intestine function naturally and regularly—for Kellogg's Bran acts exactly as nature acts. It makes forever unnecessary the use of habit-forming drugs and pills.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has proved successful when all else has failed. This is because Kellogg's is ALL bran. Doctors everywhere agree that only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective—they recommend Kellogg's Bran.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. You will like it. You will enjoy the delicious nut-like flavor—the exclusive Kellogg flavor.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in wonderful bran muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran is the road back to health. It is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages at the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant. It is sold by all grocers.

WAGNER'S SON AND WIDOW ACCUSED.

Siegfried and Frau Cosima Wagner

Frau Cosima Wagner, widow of the great German composer, and her son, Siegfried Wagner, are charged in Munich with having diverted funds collected for musical purposes to the aid of the German Monarchist movement. The money was collected all over the world—particularly in America—to support a Wagnerian festival and revival at Beyreuth. Mail addressed to General Ludendorff, head of the royalist plot, was opened and hundreds of dollars, said to have been from the Wagners, was seized.

G. O. P. Women Meet in N. Y.

State Executive Committee Endorses Mellon Plan, Retention of Movie Censorship and Schools Free From Politics.

Ulster county was represented at the meeting of the Republican Women's State Executive Committee which took place last week at the Women's National Republican Club rooms in New York, by Dr. Mary Gage Day.

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, chairman of the committee, presided at the all day conference, when the women took action on several important measures, including the endorsment of the Mellon tax plan and of a resolution that women interest themselves in the manner in which the $50,000,000 bond issue for hospitals is spent.

The women also went on record as maintaining that the majority in the state want some regulation of the motion pictures shown to their children and that they therefore favor the retention of the motion picture censorship act. The women also favor keeping the schools out of politics and discussed the deplorable conditions which exist in some of the schools throughout the state.

The women are thoroughly organized and that they vote in large numbers throughout the state was shown in the report of the county chairmen when it was discovered that women cast on an average 40 per cent of the total votes in the last election.

The women's vote cast in several of the counties was as follows: Chenango, 41 per cent; Ulster, 35 per cent; Westchester, 41 per cent; Allegheny, 46 per cent; Cortlandt, 48 per cent; Madison, 47 per cent; Orleans, 44 per cent; Schoharie, 40 per cent; Tioga, 42 per cent; Ontario, 70 per cent.

It was resolved that a sub-committee be appointed to report upon the water power development of the state and recommend legislation.

BLOUSES ARE GETTING LONGER AND LONGER.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Whether or not the three-quarter blouse will follow in the footsteps of the three-quarter coat until it reaches the high plane that garment now occupies, may be open to question. There is no use denying that blouses have been getting longer and longer.

The prevailing preference for the two-piece idea has been a stimulus to the blouse industry and the sports idea which seems to be the basic note of resort fashions has resulted in many overblouses assuming a coatlike appearance. They often button from neckline to hip in a straight line down the front. Such blouses have no belts and are very smart in satin, silk, alpaca and in heavyweight crepe or silk poplin.

The coat blouse like the coat sweater is often very highly figured, for we have not seen the last of prints by any means. In the opinion of a very astute silk merchant, prints never return for a brief season. Plain fabrics have never been the fashion for such a protracted period as at this time, which seems to argue that prints having made an excellent showing last season, may be expected to gain instead of wane in popularity.

The practicability of the tunic blouse for evening is acknowledged. One model is developed in satin crepe with bandings of silver and fur. Crystal or glass beads are used horizontally on the corsage and skirt and a cabochon is placed at the center front of the belt. The model is sleeveless and has a simple, round neckline.

The jacquette is stressed in all presentations of new models, the side fastening with buttons or sash being featured.

The growing inclination to adopt the fingertip blouse instead of the ultra long model is evidenced in the presentation of several new silhouettes in the Russian tunic. Among these is a printed fabric blouse edged with plain material, the bodice skirt combined with it being self material.

A $100,000 Poultry Business

That Amount Done in Little Over Year by Rondout Valley Co-operative Association—Prices Boosted.

(Contributed.)

The Rondout Valley Co-operative Poultry Association, Inc., of Accord, N. Y., has had a remarkable year of business, totalling to $100,000 in 14 months.

During this period it has returned to its members a price per dozen for eggs that was higher than the average shipper received for his eggs.

The success of the Association was used by independent shippers in the Rondout valley as a club over the head of many commission men in New York city, with the result that more than one of them had a remarkable "come back" in their prices, some were so harassed that they came up here to investigate and made favorable promises to their shippers.

Last summer the local dealers in eggs confessed that the prices of the Association were too high for them to buy from the Association. Some did buy from the Association but stopped because they said the prices were too high. The Association had a splendid outlet all summer for its eggs, and was a great factor in keeping the market at its best for the produce, in the matter of returns, and at its best for the consumer in the matter of quality, and value received.

To be sure, the Association has had members to withdraw on one score or another. What organization has not? We have also had the satisfaction of adding members to our list in the course of the year. We have had complaints on one ground or another in the Association, and among the buyers, but who or what organization can please everybody perfectly. However, as a young and new organization the Rondout Valley Co-operative Poultry Association, Inc., has a real creditable record for its 14 months of existence.

This association has encouraged the poultrymen of the entire state. Many inquiries and evidences of interest have come in to this office throughout the year. The result was a number of committee meetings were held at different places in the state attended by representative poultrymen and Farm Bureau agents from various sections to consider the advisability of a New York State Poultry and Egg Marketing Association.

In the meantime the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association saw the light, and consented after several conferences, to change their policy of two pool to a policy of one pool for all eggs of the same grade and quality. This removed the last barrier that stood in the way of New York state poultrymen from joining that association. So the Rondout Valley Association had several meetings of its members and after due consideration voted unanimously to join the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association, Inc., provided satisfactory arrangements could be made, and if not, we would continue our association in active marketing from Accord, N. Y., as heretofore. The result was the Rondout Valley Association has as an association, joined the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers' Association, to take effect January 21, 1924.

The Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association, Inc., is located at 14 Jay street, New York city, and is a co-operative association of poultrymen for the marketing of poultry produce. It is admirably located in the great egg and poultry markets of New York city; has splendid warehouse facilities and will soon move into larger and better quarters; is perfecting every year a better office and sales force; will soon have an ice box of its own; puts eggs in cold storage in the spring rather than glut the market; does a commission business also for non-members; handles both eggs and poultry of all kinds from all over; is now the greatest nearby white egg receiver and distributor in New York city; can and does champion the cause of poultrymen in the right quotations; is destined to become the greatest marketing agency in the east of the United States; has a 2c per dozen deduction as association costs; pays its members weekly; permits its members to sell anywhere they please, if they think they can better themselves, provided they pay 2c per dozen to the association for eggs thus sold; and when the Atlantic Coast Association enrolls 500,000 hens, which they are rapidly nearing, the association costs will only be 1c per dozen.

The Rondout Valley Association feels that the Atlantic Coast Association stands for exactly what it does, so the members voted to go in with them because one big strong organization with adequate volume is better than many small ones, that must compete and cut each other's throats.

In so doing the Rondout Valley Association is setting an example for all New York state poultrymen to follow, confidently believing it is a step forward, and the logical thing to do.

Y. W. C. A. Plays Well Attended

If they had had such a thing, it would have been in order to put out the "Standing-room Only," sign at the Y. W. C. A. on Monday evening when the two playlets were given by Y. W. C. A. girls. It was necessary to borrow chairs to accommodate the large audience, which was delighted and greatly entertained by both "My Aunt from California," and "Mrs. Oakley's Telephone."

The platform had been placed in one corner of the big auditorium or gym room, and was prettily arranged as a living room, with slight changes of arrangement necessitated by the different plays, both of which were decidely humorous.

"My Aunt from California," was coached by Mrs. M. Z. Chidester, and Miss Elizabeth Kingman as the quick-witted and fun-loving "Sally," Mrs. Isabel Wight as the decidedly "highbrow," Felicia: Miss Gladys Raichle as the indolent but fashionable Rosalie; Miss Kathleen Meeker as the real, joke-loving but joked-upon Aunt Mary; Miss Helen Haulenbeck as the unexpected mother of the three girls, Mrs. Needy; and Miss Jessie Goodsell as the rather unwelcome Miss Wilcoxgibbs were all excellent, playing their parts very realistically.

Between the two plays there was a specialty song and skit performance given by Miss Agnes Dolan and Miss Luella Garrety, which was heartily applauded.

Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler coached "Mrs. Oakley's Telephone." In that amusing farce Miss Nan Rodie was charming, if impractical as the new Mrs. Oakley; Mrs. Gratia Millard was quite natural and very effective as Constance, the bridesmaid of Mrs. Oakley; Miss Eva Shook, as the maid "Emma," delighted the audience with her conversations in German by telephone with her "Adolph," while Miss Van Vliet as Mary, the cook, kept the audience in gales of laughter by her clever acting.

After the program the girls and their young men friends enjoyed dancing, with Mrs. Rice and other members of the board of directors and Miss Estey and Miss Passmore as chaperones. Altogether, the evening was a great success.

KNIGHTS ENJOY DELICIOUS CORN BEEF AND CABBAGE

Prizes Awarded Winners in Pool Tournament.

A very large attendance of the members of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus and members from councils of adjoining cities, enjoyed the corn beef and cabbage supper served at the home Monday evening. The committee in charge received many compliments on the preparation and the manner in which it was served.

Bernard Feeney, chairman of the pool tournament, recently held by the members of the local council, took this occasion to make the presentation of prizes to the winners of the tournament. James Quigley was awarded the first prize and John McCardle the second prize for runner up. Both young men received handsome loving cups.

During the course of the supper many interesting talks were given and musical selections were rendered.

Among the guests, who most enjoyed the supper and proved the heartiest eaters were 14 lodgers from the city hall lock-up.

The Cost of a Car

is no measure of its value

These are the things to consider

THE cost of a car depends in large part on volume and efficiency. It is no criterion of value.

Studebaker builds 150,000 fine cars yearly. All of them are Sixes. The main costs are divided by that enormous output. Thus at prices of $975 and up we offer the utmost in quality. We offer maximum values.

Don't judge these cars by prices. Under other conditions they might cost twice as much, yet offer less than these.

Some major costs

Quality cars require costly facilities. Studebaker has $50,000,000 invested in modern plants and equipment. $8,000,000 in drop forge plants alone. $10,000,000 in body plants, to carry out the Studebaker standards.

There are 12,500 up-to-date machines employed to build these cars. Some are enormously expensive.

Few outputs justify such facilities. Then parts must be bought outside, and profits paid to others.

Studebaker engineering costs $500,000 per year. That to us is $3.33 per car.

Our Department of Research and Experiment employs 125 skilled men. It makes 500,000 tests per year to maintain our standards.

Our Bureau of Methods and Standards fixes the requirements for every part and detail. 12,000 inspections are necessary for each car to insure against flaws and mistakes. We employ 1,000 men to make them.

Cars like the Studebakers cannot be built without such facilities, such research, such care. Yet enormous output alone makes them possible at Studebaker prices.

The best we know

Studebakers represent the best we know. And with our army of engineers, with our wealth of experience, we probably know what is best.

We use 35 formulas for steels. Each is best suited to certain parts, as proved by years of tests.

On some steels we pay the makers a bonus of 15% to get them exactly right. There is no room to excel us there.

* * *

We machine the entire surface of each crank shaft, as was done on Liberty Airplane Motors. That extra cost is heavy. But thus we get that perfect balance, that absence of vibration.

We use more Timken bearings than any other car which costs under $5,600. They cost considerably more than ball bearings.

These facts apply to all Studebakers, of all styles and sizes. The materials used in all chasses are alike.

Beauty—Luxury—Finish

The Studebaker coach work has been famous for decades. No one can excel it.

The finish is produced by 26 operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

Open cars have real leather cushions. They cost, over imitation leather, about $25 per car.

No closed cars could be more luxurious. That lining of Chase Mohair is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. A velour lining would save about two-thirds that cost—up to $10 per car.

Note how every detail denotes infinite care. That, as you know, is expensive.

Note the completeness of our larger models. The nickel-plated bumpers, extra disc wheels with cord tires, a steel trunk, a courtesy light. These are rare extras, even on the costliest cars.

Nothing is stinted

Compare part by part with any rival cars. Studebaker will show you some scores of advantages.

Then consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this name has stood for quality. When people rode in carriages, Studebaker built the best. Now those same traditions are applied to motor cars alone.

Consider Studebaker records. Mark how these cars in service have multiplied demand, until people last year paid $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

Consider their service records. One Studebaker car, built in 1918, has run 475,000 miles. It is still in active service. It lately made a mid-winter trip from Los Angeles to New York. That means 80 years of average service, of 6,000 miles per year.

What more can you dream of in a motor car than the Studebakers offer?

Just Go and See

Studebaker is today the leader in the fine-car field.

Studebaker builds more quality cars than any other concern in the world.

Buyers of fine cars last year spent over $200,000,000 for Studebaker models.

The demand for Studebakers has almost trebled in three years — as people found them out.

Then go see them. Compare them with any car you will. Don't spend $1,000 or over without knowing what Studebaker offers. You owe that to yourself.

Unnaturalized War Veterans

They Have Until March 3 to Take Advantage of Special Provision for Quick and Easy Citizenship.

Walter G. Geroldsek, clerk of the naturalization court for Ulster county, desires to notify all honorably discharged World War veterans who have not taken out their naturalization papers that if they desire to take advantage of the provision in the act of July 19, 1919, to do so before March 3, 1924. This law authorizes the naturalization of World War veterans without complying with many of the usual requirements for naturalization, such as declaration of intention, proof of five years' residence in the United States, payment of the customary $4 filing fee, and the usual ninety-day wait from the date of filing petition to the date of final hearing. As a condition to naturalization under the special statute, the applicant must appear before a naturalization examiner with his honorable discharge and two identifying witnesses for preliminary examination.

The act of July 19, 1919, provides that its benefits will continue in force only for a period of one year after the return of all of the American troops to the United States. This one year period will expire on March, 1924, by reason of the fact that the last of the American troops were returned to the United States on March 3, 1923. After March 1, 1924, honorably discharged World War veterans will have to comply with the usual requirements for naturalization, in the same manner as aliens in ordinary cases. Therefore ex-service men if they wish to obtain advantages of the act of July 19, 1919, before its expiration on March 3, 1924, should get in immediate touch with the nearest U. S. naturalization examiner so that the necessary arrangements may be made for that purpose. Mr. Geroldsek will give the necessary information by applying to him at the Ulster county clerk's office.

Jim Coughlin Now President

James A. Coughlin, a former resident of Kingston, has been chosen president of the James A. Coughlin Association, Inc., of 501 West 145th street, New York city. The organization is an outgrowth of one that was forced to disband when one of the departments of New York city required the building which the club was using as a club room.

The boys who had formed this club immediately after their return from the World War were left without a suitable place to assemble until Jim Coughlin stepped into the breach and donated the use of his commodious offices at 1901 Amsterdam avenue, where he is engaged in the lumber business.

Later the club secured its present quarters and adopted its present name. The club is growing and now numbers about two hundred active members.

Additional honors will be showered on Jim when he leads the grand march at the club's first annual reception and ball the evening of February 8, at the Concourse Plaza, one of the finest hotels in the big city. It is expected that a number of Jim's friends from Kingston will be in New York that evening and attend the reception and ball.

Try This Way To Get Relief From Head Colds

Nothing to Swallow—You Just Melt a Little in a Spoon and Breathe in the Healing Vapors.

To stop a head cold, try this simple, direct method. Melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the penetrating Vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc. Also put a little up each nostril and snuff well back.

Another method is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Mothers prefer Vicks for their children because it avoids so much internal dosing. It can be used with perfect safety on the youngest child.

Washington, Jan. 22.—President Coolidge today took a hand in the Teapot Dome "mess.",

It was announced at the White House that the president personally has ordered the department of justice to make a full and complete investigation into the circumstances surrounding the leasing of the great naval oil reserve by ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall to Harry F. Sinclair.

President Coolidge, it was stated, is content to let the department of justice take full charge of the administration's end of the matter and criminal prosecutions are warranted they will be undertaken.

The highly sensational revelations of the past week are understood to have moved the president to interfere in the case.

Labor Dept. Probe Begun

Associated Industries at Once Withdrawn Two of Ten Charges it Had Made—Governor Conducts Examination.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Jan. 22.—In less than five minutes after the investigation by Governor Smith into the state labor department was launched in the executive chamber at noon, the Associated Industries, Inc., had "backed down" on two of the ten grave charges it made a week ago against the labor department.

Albert H. S. Swan of Rochester, president of the Associated Industries, the first witness called by the governor, admitted that the two charges which his organization had made against the state insurance fund had been "incorrectly" stated.

Swan asked permission to have these two charged withdrawn. He said his information had come from Mark A. Daly, secretary of the Associated Industries.

One of the charges was that politics dominated the department and state fund. Mr. Andrews, of the labor department, gave the names of several of the fund officials, and asserted they had speeded up its work, cleared away all old claims and were working on a more efficient basis than ever before.

Mr. Andrews gave figures showing that the expense ratio for running the fund was considerably below the 25 per cent allowed by law. The Daly charges alleged that during present fiscal year the expense ratio would run up to 30 per cent.

The other members of the advisory committee who endorsed the statement of Mr. Andrews are: Thomas W. Larkin, a manufacturer of farm implements; Frank L. Moss, president of the Ithaca Chain Works; John L. Weiss, of the Rochester Carting Company, and Paul E. Fitzpatrick, president of W. H. Fitzpatrick Sons of Buffalo.

Governor Smith then called Mark A. Daly, Society of Associated Industries. He admitted he had made no attempts to prove the charges he had made against the state fund, and that the withdrawal of the charges by President Swan, showed that they were false. Daly refused to tell from whom he got the information.

"I got it from a confidential source," he told the governor, "if I were to tell you the name of the man it would greatly embarrass him."

We can consider no such thing as a confidential source when the public welfare is considered," said the governor. "I direct you to tell who gave the information."

"I mean no disrespect to you, governor but I cannot."

"You mean you will not."

"Yes."

"Well I'll deal with that later," said the governor.

Daly denied the statement of Andrews that the charges were made maliciously. He said their only purpose was to conserve the interest of the members of the association, and that the withdrawal of them showed the good faith of the association.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 22.—The stock market was steady at the opening today.

Steadiness prevailed during the forenoon trading. Stocks gave a good account of themselves in the first hour, but toward the noon hour the oils, with the exception of Producers and Refiners which was exceptionally strong, and rose 1¼ to 42¾, were subjected to heaviness. Pure Oil lost ⅝ to 23⅞, Pan-American Petroleum 2¼ to 51⅜ and Cosden ⅜ to 35⅝ Sinclair Oil disclosed considerable weakness, yielding 3 points to 22⅞ due to the sensational testimony offered Monday in the Teapot Dome investigation. The steels and rails presented a steady tone. General Electric in spite of rumors of a split up rose over 3 points to 214¼.

DR. WINTER PERFORMS A NOVEL OPERATION

Removes Open Safety Pin From Baby's Gullet.

Dr Daniel T. Winter, formerly of this city and a son of the late D. T. Winter of Pine Hill, has been figuring prominently in newspapers and medical journals because of an operation performed recently by which an open safety pin was removed from the esophagus, or gullet, of a three-weeks old baby in the Jersey City, N. J., hospital. The operation is said to be without parallel in the history of surgery The identity of the child is withheld by the hospital officials.

While the child was being dressed by the mother, a safety pin fell from her hand into the child's mouth. Before she could extract it, the infant swallowed it. The child was rushed to the hospital where an X-ray examination revealed the pin lodged in the lower part of the esophagus. It was impossible to feed the child and thus the extraction of the foreign object was immediately necessitated. The usual method of inserting an instrument into the canal was impossible because the pin was open side up and the canal itself was so small that no instrument was small enough to be used.

Dr Winter cut into the stomach and an instrument was then able to extract the pin. Forty-eight hours after the operation the child was taking nourishment and a few days later was discharged cured.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY DUE TO JEALOUSY

Man Shoots Dancing Wife, Kills Youth and Self.

Louisville, Ky.—John George, twenty-six, insurance agent, shot and probably mortally wounded his wife, mortally wounded Eugene Coats, seventeen, her partner, and then killed himself at a dance in the home of his mother-in-law here. George was crazed with jealousy because his wife had refused a dance with him to dance with Coats, investigators believe.

"I had been expecting this. He had threatened it before," Mrs. George was quoted after she had been taken to a hospital. Coats died in the hospital.

Mrs. George's mother said George was in a happy mood before he became angered. He went out and a short time later called his wife into the front yard and shot her, following a brief exchange of words.

George then entered the house, shot Coats, fired twice at other dancers and then killed himself instantly.

Mr. and Mrs. George, married five years, had a two-year-old daughter.

Hen That Ate Diamond Is Purchased for $250

Boston.—Lady Camille, a prize blue Orpington hen that was arrested recently charged with theft after it had snatched a diamond from a ring worn by a visitor at the Chelsea poultry show, has been purchased by Lawrence A. Randall, a Boston poultryman. He paid $250 to the owner of the diamond, in addition to the ruling market price for the hen.

Lady Camille was released when a judge found that the criminal code did not extend to fowls. Then the owner of the diamond insisted on an operation and paid the hen's owner $100 as damages in event of Lady Camille's death from the operation. Later Randall came forward with this offer, which both owners accepted.

"Spirits" Prompt Mother to Put Child on Coals

South Portland, Me.—Mrs. Ethel G Gilliksen placed her two-month-old daughter on the red hot coals in her kitchen stove, the police said, because she believed that "spirits from God had called for the sacrifice" of the baby and that she "was soon to follow."

Neighbors who heard the screams of her other children rushed in and rescued the infant. At the hospital physicians said that the baby, although severely burned, probably would recover. The woman will be examined to determine her mental condition.

H. D. Anderson, senior director of physical education in Latvia, is back of the movement to introduce Rugby there He has written to Rugby authorities in England asking that they furnish him with material in the form of photographs and histories of championships which he can use to arouse such interest in Rugby it will be possible to add that style of football game to next season's sports calendar.

Reds Outdrew Spokes in Attendance During 1923

The Cincinnati club officials have issued a statement of attendance for 1923 that shows 575,000 in round numbers paid at the gate to see the Reds play at home. Cincinnati is justly proud of the record, for on basis of population it is considerably more than 100 per cent. What elates Cincinnati most is that the rival Ohio city of Cleveland, with an attendance of 538,000, not only was below the Reds in total, but also far below in proportion of attendance to population, since Cleveland has a population practically double that of Cincinnati.

Princeton Would Employ Rockne of Notre Dame

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's coach, made such a hit with Princeton men that they want him to be head coach there next year inasmuch as Bill Roper, the present incumbent, is likely to leave his alma mater at the end of the present season

Princeton may want Rockne but it is safe to say he will be found at South Bend again in 1924, turning out another formidable Gold and Blue eleven

Pleadings in County Court

George Farber, James Hicks, Aloysius Bailey and Mayo De Long Say Not Guilty—Fowler's Trial Begun.

County court was convened this morning at 10 o'clock with County Judge Fowler presiding. The thirty extra jurors drawn to take up criminal work were present and those who presented legal excuses were excused from service at this term. After several arraignments and pleas court went into recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon, then to take up the case of The People vs. Albert Fowler. Frank W. Brooks appears for Fowler. Fowler is charged with entering the drug store of the McBride Drug Company on Wall street.

The case of The People vs. George Dowe in which Henry R. DeWitt appeared for defendant at the last day of court and announced that the case would be ready for trial, was not taken up for trial. Mr. DeWitt informed the court that William D. Cunningham had been substituted in his place since last week and he asked that the name of William D. Cunningham be substituted as attorney of record. At the present time Mr. Cunningham is engaged in trial of another case and will not be ready to take up the Dowe case until next week. Dirstrict Attorney Traver opposed the postponement of the case and stated to the court that he had no knowledge of the substitution, that he had sent out the usual notice of trial to Mr. DeWitt and had subpoenaed his witnesses for today. The witnesses were in court and he asked if the substitution of counsel would mean a postponement of the case. LeRoy Lounsberry who appeared for Mr. Cunningham stated that it would be impossible to take up the case this week. He said Mr. Cunningham would be ready next week to try the case. As District Attorney Traver had witnesses present in the Dowe case and was ready for trial in that case he was not prepared to move any other case for trial. The Dowe case it was announced would be ready for trial next Monday at 2 o'clock. Mr. DeWitt had not been notified of the substitution of counsel until after witnesses had been subpoenaed on the part of The People.

John T. Cahill, who was appointed in the case of the People vs. Peter Baniowske, asked that some other attorney be substituted as he was engaged in other work and had been unable to consult with defendant. The charge is burglary, third degree. Thomas F. Coughlin was substituted.

George Farber, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of rape, first degree, and assault, second degree, alleged to have been committed on the 25th of October, 1923, in the town of Esopus, was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. Frank W. Brooks appeared for defendant. Bail was continued.

James Hicks, arraigned on a charge of assault, second degree, alleged to have been committed in the city of Kingston on September 26, entered a plea of not guilty. Chris Flanagan, who appeared for Hicks, asked ten days to make motions.

Aloysius Bailey, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, pleaded not guilty when arraigned. Frank W. Brooked appeared for defendant and bail was continued.

Mayo De Long, indicted on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated, through Frank W. Brooks, who appeared for Judge Thorpe of Catskill, attorney for defendant, entered a plea of not guilty and bail was continued in this case.

William Reilly, indicted for burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed in the town of Rosendale on November 6, pleaded not guilty. Frank W. Brooks appeared for defendant. Bail was continued.

Floyd Robb, a negro indicted for grand larceny in the first degree in stealing an automobile valued at $600 in the city of Kingston on November 12, the property of Pareis Williams, changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty. Andrew J. Cook appeared for Robb. Robb has been jail for 3 months. He was sentenced to one year in the county jail and to pay to the clerk of the court $50. The jail sentence was suspended on defendant's promise to make restitution in view of the time he has already served in jail. The $50 must be paid before the next term of court. Robb in answer to the usual questions said he was a plumber, 44 year sold and had been born in Pennsylvania. He is married; his father is alive and was a Catholic. He had never before been convicted of any crime.

An order was issued directing that George Matthews, who was sentenced at the last term of court to 7 months in the county jail, be released from jail and turned over to the Naval authorities at the Brooklyn navy yard. He is a deserter from the U. S. Navy. The order was granted as requested by District Attorney Traver and Matthews turned over to the naval authorities.

The jurors were excused until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Coolidge Firm for Mellon Plan

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 22.—President Coolidge has determined to go down with colors flying rather than compromise on the Mellon program of tax reduction.

Efforts of Republican leaders in congress to win over the White House to a departure from the rates laid down in the Mellon bill have been an absolute failure, it became known this afternoon. The leaders have been informed that the White House expects all "regular" Republicans to support the Mellon bill.

It was announced at the White House today that President Coolidge has turned down all suggestions of compromising on the maximum surtax, and it was further stated, significantly, that even if congress compromises, the position of President Coolidge will still be unchanged, a definite hint of veto.

SCHEME TO SELL BOOZE BY MAIL DISCOVERED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Jan. 22.—What federal officials declare is a tremendous conspiracy to flood the nation with poison whiskey through a mail order scheme which operates from this city, was ordered investigated today by a special federal grand jury. The jury was secretly drawn a week ago.

The ramifications of the alleged conspirators are so extensive that direct interest in the presentation of evidence to the grand jury is being taken by the office of United States Attorney General Daugherty.

WILD TURKEY LIKES TO SAIL

Uses Wings More Than Is Supposed—Volpanes Down Mountain Slope at Express Train Speed.

Wild turkeys use their wings more than is supposed; for going to and coming from the roost; when disturbed; often to come together from considerable distances; when changing their feeding grounds, and sometimes they will fly into tall trees apparently just to spy out the land. In mountainous country turkeys do a good deal of sailing down long slopes. This wild volplaning is a most beautiful and impressive flight downward and the rush of the wind through these makes a sound like a howling shrapnel. The speed is terrific, and it is checked by the birds gracefully swerving to one side ere they come to ground. On several occasions I have attempted to time such flight, having the birds in full view and knowing approximately the distance covered. Unless my estimate was wholly wrong, turkeys can volplane down a two-mile mountain slope in a shade over a minute and a half. Another fly of about three miles, including a dip to a distant ridge, seemed to be made in three minutes flat. But such speed, under the circumstances, is not extraordinary when we remember that a green-winged teal, along a straight river reach, has been timed at 180 miles an hour. The speed of wild things is at least one insurance policy they carry against extermination.

The case of the wild turkey is exciting in its promise. Here is a great bird for long in many states on the verge of extinction, now coming back in all his regal stateliness. Nor is the mere killing of him the only sport that his return affords. His presence once more in our forests invests them with the spirit of primeval wildness that no man wishes this country ever wholly to lose.—Archibald Rutledge, in the New York Independent.

EXCHANGED PIPES FOR LAND

Three Hundred Were Part of the Price William Penn Paid for Tract in Seventeenth Century.

Pipes in the Seventeenth century were largely made in Holland of pipe-clay imported from England—to the disgust and loss of English pipemakers. In 1663 the company of tobacco-pipe-makers petitioned parliament to forbid the export of tobacco pipe clay, since by the manufacture of pipes in Holland their trade was much damaged. The company's request was granted, but in the next year it again found it necessary to go to parliament, showing their threatened ruin because cooks, bakers and ale-house keepers and others made pipes, but so unskillfully that they were brought into disesteem, and requesting that none be allowed to follow the trade who had not been apprentices seven years.

During the latter part of the Seventeenth century English pipes were presented by colonists in America to the Indians. They subsequently became valuable as objects of barter or part-purchase value in exchange for land. In 1667 120 pipes and 100 jew's-harps were given for a strip of country near Timber creek in New Jersey. William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, purchased a tract of land, and 300 pipes were included in the articles given in the exchange.

The Rule.

The toll-gate keeper in a certain section of Alabama is an aged darky. When, recently, a farmer of that district sought to pay toll by the offer of a dime, the coin was returned to him by the keeper with this statement:

"'Scuse me, boss, but I can't take dis dime. It's bent an' de county's got a strict rule agin our takin' mutilated coins."

"Indeed?" said the farmer, "Well, let me tell you that you gave me that very bent dime yourself in change yesterday!"

"May be, may be," murmured the old darky, "Dere ain't no rule agin my handin' out mutilated money. It's only agin my takin' it."

BREEDING ENTHUSIASM FOR THE FARM

Porter, Mo., used to be a community with its tail between its legs. At the schoolhouse, for instance, flapping wall papers, fallen plaster, broken panes at unshaded windows corresponded with the peeling paint, ripped clapboards, treeless yard of a neglected rural school. Tramps added filth. Porter children went to Kirksville to school—later to Kirksville or elsewhere to live—if they could possibly escape the blight at home. Farming was becoming a despised pursuit.

Today Porter has seen co-operative buying, good roads, blooded stock, a demonstration farm on the one hand, and a young folks' band, an interdenominational Sunday school, and college entrance courses on the other; increased its real estate values, substituted a community for a neighborhood divided against itself, and turned its children into Porter and farm enthusiasts. Its Farmers' week and home economics course, conducted annually by the university, are famous throughout the state for the local support given by old and young.

At the heart of the new Porter is its once-despised school. At the innermost heart of all the development is the Porter school teacher, Marie Turner Harvey. She is one of those more than wise folk, a leader who knows when not to lead. From the six-year-old whose English and penmanship, arithmetic and farming lessons become vitally important affairs when she can sum them up in a triumphant sentence, "I planted a 60-foot row of onions today," to the erstwhile enemies who discover unexpected good in each other while reroofing the schoolbuilding so as not to raise their tax rate, Mrs. Harvey has taught the community to discover its own powers.

A dozen years ago, in the Kirksville schools, Mrs. Harvey had realized that while she was teaching Porter children to be good citizens of Kirksville, the more successful a teacher she was, the more the rural community suffered. In 1912, parents of some Porter children who were growing up scornful of the home place, asked her to make over their own school.

Mrs. Harvey won conservative farmers by having the old schoolhouse repaired instead of approving the proposed new building. She insisted on the dignity of a house of her own even though the only empty house was a tumble-down $5 a month cottage. She weathered threatened injunction suits, "stacked" school board elections and underground scandal started by the group who suspected a nigger in the woodpile when a high-priced teacher voluntarily came to Porter at $50 a month. The three years she promised to give have grown to ten. Still Porter finds room for growth. Still it begs for more of Mrs. Harvey's sort of domination over its affairs.

Making the Goat Pay.

Dutchman riding in a little cart drawn by a goat was stopped at a bridge by the toll keeper.

"I got to pay toll?" said Hans.

"Yes; 5 cents to cross the bridge."

After an argument he paid the toll and went on. In the afternoon he came back again. Only this time he had the goat sitting in the cart and was drawing it himself. Out came the toll keeper. "Here, you know you've got to pay 5 cents."

The Dutchman shook his head and pointing to the goat, said: "Don't talk to me—ask the driver."

4 Zero Weather Fires in N. Y.

Four Are Dead and Six Hurt From Smoke or Causes Incidental to Fire Fighting.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 22.—Four persons died, others were severely burned and damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars was suffered in four fires at different points in the city early today while zero weather handicapped firemen and chilled to the bone occupants who were turned into the streets.

James Creamer, 50, and his sister perished in a fire which burned their home to the ground. The smoke overpowered them as they slept, and a daring rescue by firemen went for naught. Police believe the fire was incendiary. Albert E. Donovan, fireman, died of heart disease while fighting a blaze at Queens.

In a three alarm fire at a Bronx warehouse, six firemen were injured by a back draught. The blast jarred wreckage on them as they fought their way up the stairs from the basement.

Heroic work by the fire fighters prevented a catastrophe when the Standard Oil Company plant in Long Island City was menaced by a fire in a nearby building. After a two hour struggle firemen subdued the blaze.

As the fires raged, a biting gale swept through the city from the northwest, causing the temperature to drop to the lowest point yet recorded during the winter. Early today the termometer registered 2 degrees above zero in some sections of the city.

POULTRY

Rat Trap and Dry Mash Feeder in Combination.

A combination rat trap and dry mash feeder is a rather novel addition to the poultry house. The feeder is a long box, 4 foot high and 1 foot wide, with a sloped and slatted top, through which the hens put their heads to eat during the day. To convert this into a rat trap, a 4-inch hole was bored in the end of the hopper, a short length of 4-inch stovepipe fastened in the hole, and a bag tied over the other end of the pipe and spread out on the ground. A heavy board cover was hinged to the feed box; this was kept open by means of a hook during the day, but the hook was released, and a small prop with a string attached to it used at night. The string led away to a distant window so that the poultryman could pull it without entering the poultry house and disturbing the rats. A yank at the string let the cover drop and trapped the rats inside. Then, by beating on the cover with a stick, the rats were made to run through the hole, down the pipe, and into the bag, where a few blows killed them. As long as the hens ate from the feeder the rats never seemed suspicious.—L. Harris Hiscock, Skaneateles, N. Y., in Popular Mechanics Monthly.

Pay More Attention to Feeding Poultry Flock

With the coming of cold weather and higher prices for eggs, careful poultrymen pay more attention than ever to the feeding of their flocks, so egg production may start early and be maintained as long as possible. To help meet the demand for information on feeding, the college of agriculture at Ithac has published a bulletin containing the rations it has found by experiment to be the most efficient. Directions for the use of these feeds and for the management of flocks are also discussed, two things which, in the words of the bulletin, are "as important as the mixtures themselves."

The amount of feed depends upon the appetites of the birds, and no definite rule for feeding will apply to all conditions. Scant feeding in the morning and at noon, followed by a heavy feeding of grain in the litter of the hen house early enough so the birds will find it before dark, has given best results. Green feed, oyster shell, and clean, fresh, pure water are also essential.

Equal parts by weight of mash and grain are fed; the former is made as follows for laying hens: 100 pounds each of wheat bran, wheat middlings, cornmeal, ground oats or ground barley, and meat scrap, and three pounds of salt. The grain mixture consists of 500 pounds of cracked corn, 200 pounds each of barley and wheat, and 100 pounds of heavy oats.

A copy of the bulletin will be sent to those who write to the college at Ithaca for E 45.

Important to Note Size and Shape of All Eggs

For those who are shipping eggs to special markets, it is important to watch the size and shape of the eggs, as well as to see how many the hens are laying and what color they are. Too long an egg crushes from the top in shipping, and cuts down the receipts over a period of months; too wide an egg crushes from the side. Customers demand a fair amount of uniformity in size and shape, because it makes more attractive selling. They are willing to pay more for such quality.

"The new breeder of today can make more money by breeding for egg quality than for more eggs," says an eastern authority. "Many who go in for producing more eggs overlook so many things. I recently saw a poultryman who had a number of hens with records up to 300 eggs per year each, and he had a flock of 200 average, but of nearly 100 eggs I saw, from as many different hens, not over 20 would pass for fancy eggs on the market and bring top price. Some would simply have gone as miscellaneous eggs; they were too small and tinted."

Day of Definite Methods.

The day for haphazard methods in breeding poultry has passed into the pages of history. This is the day of definite, accurate methods. The modern poultryman must know definitely the sire and dam of the birds he raises if he is to have their exact pedigree.

Pullets Lay in Winter.

Young stock that begins to lay in the fall of the year will usually lay throughout the winter, the period when eggs are highest in price.

MAKES STUDY OF LAUGHTER

Psychologist Declares That He Can Tell One's Character by the Vowel He Uses.

A well-known psychologist has been making a study of laughter, which he says differs in its indication of character by its vowel sound.

Those who laugh in "A," he says, or make a sound like "A," are loyal to their friends, frank in their speech, fond of bustle and movement and of versatile character.

People who laugh in "E" are seldom cheerful company because they are phlegmatic and melancholy.

Most children laugh in "I," and people who continue to laugh in "I" after they have grown to be men and women have childlike qualities. They are timid but affectionate, irresolute but candid and are always obliging and ready to work for others. They are apparently not very strong characters.

People who laugh on the vowel "O" are often successful in life because they are not oversensitive. They do not worry about public opinion, and criticism slips off their backs like water off a duck's. They are generous, self-confident and, in spite of their bushfulness, usually liked and trusted.

Few people like laughers in "U." As a matter of fact, these individuals are very sparing in their laughter. Life for them holds little of fun and mirth. —London Tit-Bits.

TOLD FORTUNES IN COFFEE

Magazine Printed in 1731 Tells of the "Famous Mrs. Cherry," Secress.

Coffee has been put to many curious uses, according to William H. Ukers, author of "All About Coffee" (The Tea and Coffee Trade Journal company, New York), but none stranger than the one described in an account, reprinted from an English magazine of 1731, of fortune-telling, or "divination" by coffee grounds.

The fortune-teller, or "diviner," described herself as "the famous Mrs. Cherry, the only gentlewoman truly learned in the occult science of tossing of coffee grounds, who has with uninterrupted success for some time past practiced to the general satisfaction of her female visitants. Her hours are after prayers are done at St. Peter's church, until dinner. (N. B.—She never requires more than one ounce of coffee from a single gentlewoman, and so proportioned for a second or third person, but not to exceed that number at any one time.)

"If this one ounce of coffee represented her payment for reading the future, the charge could not be considered exorbitant," comments Mr. Ukers. She seems to have had less regard for her own fortune than for those of her patrons.

Not a Good Shot.

The Business Girl's boss is a salesman of nervous temperament, quick and energetic in his dictation and quite fond of high-sounding phrases.

He has his fair share of slang and many a snappy sentence has she typewritten that would make an English professor's hair (if he had any) stand on end in horror.

At times he mixes his metaphors, but the other day she got the best one yet. The boss was writing to the editor-in-chief of a large metropolitan daily complimenting him on his editorials, and telling him they were the only ones he (the boss) ever read consistently. It was a big compliment—the boss thought—and then he thought he'd cap the climax, so to speak, and he dictated:

"In my opinion your editorials hit the bullseye squarely on the nose every time!"—New York Sun.

Wanted All the Details.

An officer told a story in the mess one night of his harpooning a gigantic sunfish off the Andamans. After some moments of frenzy, the unfortunate fish set off at a prodigious speed and, before it succumbed, had towed the officer's boat twice round an islet of considerable size.

At the close of this narrative there was silence for a few minutes, and then the colonel in a tone of quiet interest, asked: "Did it perspire much?"

An Official Criticism.

The Movie Manager—Good morning, ma'am. I asked you to call because I wanted your opinion on some of my features.

The New Censor—Well, to begin with, your forehead is too low, your eyes are not mates, your nose is too big and bulbous, your mouth is too large and flabby and you've little or no chin. Otherwise they will do very well. Is that all?

Smoking a Real "Deadly Sin."

Smoking is a real deadly sin in some countries today. It is probable that more men have died for tobacco smoking at the hands of Sikhs, Senusis and Wahibis, whose religions forbid this practice, than died under the Roman empire for professing Christianity.

Pretty Soft, Eh?

During a discussion at a meeting of the historical society, upon the slight consideration attached to life by uncivilized nations, a speaker mentioned the extraordinary circumstance that in China if a man were condemned to death he could easily hire a substitute to die for him; and the debator went on, "I believe many poor fellows get their living by acting as substitutes in that way."

A Monstrosity.

A sportsman, being conceited about his fine figure, wore corsets to show it off.

One morning, riding to the moors, he was thrown from his horse. A gamekeeper ran to render assistance.

The first-aid man began to feel the fallen one all over to see if any bones were broken, and suddenly yelled out to a gillie:

"Run for a doctor. Here's a man's ribs runnin' north and south, instead o' east and west."

No Guiding Hand.

Jones—Say, waiter, is this an incubator chicken?

Waiter—I don't know, sir; why?

Jones—Any chicken that has had a mother could never get as tough as this one.—Sun Dial.

Laureate K. O.'s Coffey in First

Round Which Lasts But a Minute and a Half—Both Boxers Start at Top Speed From The Gong—Uppercuts Did The Trick.

Vince Coffey, local welterweight, met Frankie Laureate of Troy Monday evening at the Collar City A. C. show in Troy. The bout was scheduled for twelve rounds but customers only saw one and a half minutes of boxing. After this short space of sparring Laureate let loose a terrific right uppercut, putting the local boxer to sleep. This was the third meeting between the pair, Coffey winning the two previous bouts. Laureate's knockout victory was a big surprise to Capitol District boxing enthusiasts who jammed every nook and corner of the theatre, many being unable to gain admittance to the building.

As the fight started it was evident that it would not last long as Laureate and Coffey tore away at each other like two wildcats. They ran to the center of the ring, touched each other's gloves and went into a hot exchange. Referee Morrison of Binghamton was forced to pry them apart. A few seconds after the break Coffey sent over a heavy left followed by another heavy right that seemed to daze Laureate. The Trojan, however, surprised everybody in the theatre by countering with a right in the jaw that sent Coffey to the floor. It was apparent that the Kingstonian was in a bad way and he rested until the referee reached nine in the count.

As Coffey jumped to his feet Laureate rushed him against the ropes. With Coffey backed against the ropes, Laureate sent over another deadly right to the jaw. Although Coffey went to the floor many said he slipped and that the punch did not down him. They had been fighting a little more than a minute and there was more action crowded into that minute than in any round of their two previous bouts. After Coffey arose Laureate again went into close quarters and scored with a left to the body. Frankie then suddenly brought his right up in true Dempsey fashion, caught Coffey squarely on the jaw and the latter was counted out. Laureate carried his victim to his corner.

Laureate and Coffey, it was said, agreed to make 154 pounds for the fight. When it came time to weigh in in the afternoon Laureate, it is said, instead of jumping on the scales with his street clothes on, Jimmy Betts, manager of Coffey, would not allow this and claimed the $100 forfeit posted by Laureate. At the ringside it was announced that Laureate weighed 154 and Coffey 152½. The Troy boy looked to be nearer 160 than 154.

Boxing Here This Year.

A meeting to make general arrangements for such exhibitions will be held on Thursday by officers of the Kingston Fair Grounds and the athletic association.
